

HE'LL OBSERVE THE PLUNGER.

PRESIDENT TO SEE SUBMARINE'S STUNTS AT OYSTER BAY.

"The Sun's" Report About the Boat Confirmed—Roosevelt Wants to Encourage Valor in the Navy—Senator Lodge, Just Home, Summoned to Sagamore Hill.

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 12.—The President's special train which carried him to Wilkes-Barre and Chautauque, arrived at the Erie station in Jersey City at 3 o'clock this morning, personally conducted by President Underwood of the Erie, whose private car was part of the train from Lakewood. The train stood on a side track. Breakfast was served on board and at 8 o'clock, the President and his party boarded the Pennsylvania tug Lancoaster and proceeded to Long Island City, where a special train was awaiting him. He reached Oyster Bay at 9:45 this morning.

A batch of accumulated correspondence was brought to the President in Long Island City, and all the way to Oyster Bay, he and Acting Secretary Barnes were busy with it. The President said he felt no fatigue at all after spending two nights on the cars and delivering a dozen speeches en route.

The Sun's report that the submarine boat Plunger was coming to Oyster Bay for the President's inspection was confirmed to-day officially. She is due to arrive here some time within the next week. The President will examine the Plunger thoroughly and then he will watch her plungings and risings and all the stunts she is capable of in the water.

The reason the President has had these tests of the Plunger arranged is because he desires to promote an interest in submarines. But he desires still more to encourage valor in the navy and during it just the sort required in the use of the submarine. The President firmly believes that nothing can be done by a navy in war which it has not previously done in peace.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, who landed from the steamship Cedric this afternoon, started at once for Oyster Bay for a conference with President Roosevelt. A message from the President asking the Senator to come at once was waiting for him when the Cedric got in. He arrived here at 7:30 this morning. The Senator said his prolonged trip abroad had no public significance.

"I want," he said, "purely for pleasure and recreation, and I wanted to see the President before going home to see my children."

It is known, however, that while abroad the Senator had interviewed Lord Lansdowne, the British Minister for Foreign Affairs, as well as with Rouvier, the French Premier.

NEWPORT'S FINE LAWN FETE.

Society Women Make $10,000 With Which to Help Consumptives.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 12.—The lawn fete given this afternoon by society women for the benefit of the Newport Tuberculosis Society was the most elaborate affair of the kind ever given here, and it is expected that as a result of the fete more than $10,000 will be realized for the association.

The fete was on the lawn of the F. W. Vanderbilt place, which had been transformed into a Coney Island on a small scale, with much attention to floral decoration.

Three thousand persons were in attendance, and when the affair was over practically everything offered for sale had been disposed of.

Small fortunes were spent in the arrangement of the booths, the most expensive being that of Mrs. Marston J. Perry, while the most attractive was that of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, who presided over a cottage in an enclosure which she called The Lark. She and her assistants sold animals, birds and goldfish, while next to Mrs. Fish's booth was a shed under which stood a pony and cart offered by Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs for sale.

The novelty of the fete was the dairy of Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt. It was in a rustic enclosure and a bevy of society girls dressed as dairymaids dispensed products of the farm.

A large exhibit was that of the army and navy, composed of tents in front of which were stacks of arms and accoutrements, with sailors, marines and troops from Fort Adams, the latter doing patrol duty along the cliff side of the estate.

MAGISTRATE DISGUISED.

Whitman Barely Escapes Arrest at Jefferson Market Police Court.

When Magistrate Whitman entered the Jefferson Market police court yesterday to begin his tour of duty there, he was stopped at the gate by Policemen Malone.

"Let me pass," said Magistrate Whitman. "Who are you?" asked the policeman.

"I'm the Magistrate," answered Mr. Whitman.

"I'm afraid you're a liar," said the policeman, "and if you don't clear out I'll have you arrested."

"I tell you I'm the Magistrate," reiterated Mr. Whitman.

"Thomas, put this man under arrest," said Malone to one of the court squad.

Thomas put his hand heavily on the Magistrate's shoulder.

"Don't you know me?" asked the Magistrate.

"I know the name," said Policeman Thomas and then a smile came to his face.

"Open the gate," said he. "It's Magistrate Whitman with his mistake off."

LIQUOR QUESTION AT ASBURY.

Ministers Say They Are Not for High License—Hoy Election Promised for Friday.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 12.—The Asbury Park ministers issued a joint protest against high license to-day. They had been quoted a few days ago as being in favor of the project. They deny that they expressed the sentiments attributed to them. They say that any attempt to make this radical change in the policy of Asbury Park should be characterized by due deliberation and consideration. For this reason they assert that the election on Friday provided for by the City Council will not be a true expression of the sentiment of the community.

The letter has denounced the spirits of the high license contingent, who up to to-day believed the ministers were for the measure. The election next Friday is likely to be hotly contested.

The trustees of the Park Congregational Church in Brooklyn have received permission from Supreme Court Justice Kruse to mortgage the property in Second street and Eighth avenue to the Dime Savings Bank in the sum of $50,000. The money is required to complete and furnish the new Sunday school building.

LIVE TOPICS ABOUT TOWN.

It does not often fall to the lot of one man to be a grandfather and a grandson at the same time. Such, however, is the good fortune of Louis F. Haffen's Jefferson Democratic Club.

Mr. Paul's grandmother, Mrs. Bastian, is living at 157th street and Elton avenue, hale and hearty, in her ninety-seventh year. Her son-in-law, John Paul, Sr., lives at the same address, and at 78 is considered good for a good many more years. His son, John, Jr., is now 48 years old. John, Jr.'s first daughter to be married is now the wife of Elwood Sypher, and lives with her husband at 731 Elton avenue, where now, in sight of Grandfather Paul's grandmother's own home, she has just brought into the world a healthy little girl baby.

As soon as this baby is old enough to talk it will be able to enjoy the rare experience of saluting its great, great grandma.

Though St. Thomas's Church is in ruins, the fire has not driven from the tower for good the pigeons that have for years made their homes there.

On the afternoon of the fire they seemed as much at home as ever above the belfry, in spite of the fact that the ruins of other parts of the edifice still smoked and firemen were at work tearing down dangerous walls.

A parrot on the fourth floor of a building in Fifth avenue near Twenty-third street each day scares hundreds of persons by screaming like a child in danger. The mounted cops and traffic men are about the only ones who are immune. Just when passing vehicles seem thickest and the number of pedestrians greatest Polly sets up yells that cause the blood of the average person to run cold. Calmen rein in their horses, shake hands and get aboard again to continue his trip. He starts downtown from near Forty-second street about 11 o'clock every day when it is not raining and rides until dinner time.

"What a comfort the exchange system is," exclaimed one woman shopper to a friend she met in the elevator of a big department store. "Yesterday I bought a hat which I didn't like after I got it home, but which I brought it back and got three pounds of butter and a mousetrap for it."

On the Hudson River day boat the other day a young girl caused amusement by her determined endeavors to acquire a cup of tan in one day. She sat on the hurricane deck, hatless, holding back her head and lifting her face to the sun's rays, much as a chicken lifts up its head when taking a drink. Every few minutes she would go below and wet her handkerchief. Then with this she would moisten her face and let the wind and sun dry it off. She worked harder in a day for that coat of tan than the average person does all summer, and she didn't care who knew it.

This is harvest time for impostors in and out of the city who pose as divinity students to book subscriptions to religious periodicals. Some of these schemers are veterans, while others are outwitted by right-winders, who do not intend ever to deliver anything. All generally employ the vacation story "trying to accumulate a few dollars in order to further my education."

On Broadway, not far from its most flaming district, there dwells a tobaccoist who brings to his trade all the love of an artist. He has been in business thirty years or more, and during that time he has collected everything pertaining to the smoking one could imagine. The disconcerting visitor will recognize cigars, cigarettes and tobacco from almost every place on the globe. Long forgotten brands will be found within reach. Strange, unheard of mixtures occupy his shelves. Pipes of bewildering shape and not less confusing history are displayed. Igniting contrivances, from the old time flint and tinder box down to modern electrical inventions, form part of the proprietor's possessions. But one of his most curious collections is an array of receptacles containing cigar tips accumulated during the years he has been in business.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor are at Friedham, Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer's cottage at Newport, for the time being. Mrs. Astor was with her father, Edward S. Willing, at his cottage immediately after her arrival. Mr. Willing has with him his summer son, J. Barton Willing, and his widowed daughter, Mrs. Lawrence.

Allice Astor, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Astor's little girl, has also been at the cottage since her father went to England. The arrival of the Astors gave a flip to the gaieties which had been decidedly conspicuous by their absence.

Foxhall Keene has been going about for some days at Saratoga on crutches owing to a strained ligament. It has been said of him time and again that he has broken every bone in his body, and these it seems are easier mended than sprains are adjusted. Mr. Keene is housekeeping this summer with his friend H. De Courcy Forbes, and when they are not guests at other persons' dinners at the clubhouse they are giving dinners themselves. J. R. Keene is putting up with his son.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorillard Ronalds of New York are touring the French resorts. Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould and family have gone to Scotland for the grouse hunting. Lewis S. Thompson is about to sail to participate in this also. Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rogers and family will soon leave London for Scotland for the shooting season.

Major and Mrs. William Boersman Wetmore are entertaining a week end party at their Alhambra, N. J., residence. Some of the rooms in this are particularly fine. The mahogany dining room furniture came to Major Wetmore from his grandparents and $20,000 was expended in the fittings of this room, including the beamed ceiling and high wainscoting topped with tapestry.

IN SOCIETY.

Though there are still two crowded Sundays ahead for the summer resorts, the town begins to wear an aspect of the early autumn season. The leading hotels are filled with visitors from other cities who are convinced that New York is the most amusing of all summer places. There is the usual difficulty to find tables at the fashionable restaurants, where one sees constantly those who are reported as located at Newport, Bar Harbor or elsewhere. Among others here during the week were Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombly, who are at the St. Regis. Mrs. Clarence Mackay came from Saratoga for a brief visit. Mr. John E. Parsons was down from Lenox to welcome her son, David Wolfe Bishop, on his arrival from Europe, he having been absent for two years.

Among others sailing next Friday from Europe for home are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould and their sons, who will go direct to their country place at Ardsley. Louis T. Hoyt will sail for this side on Tuesday, and Mr. W. F. Chappell will sail from England for New York on Wednesday. Miss Helen Brice, daughter of the late Senator Calvin S. Brice, will remain abroad until October. Her sister, Miss Kate Brice, arrived during the past week.

Arthur Remington Robert and his mother, Mrs. Christopher R. Robert, have lived abroad for the last eight or ten years, and consequently news of the approaching immediate marriage of Mr. Robert with Miss Maud Ann Sullivan, daughter of the late Sir Edward Sullivan, is only of incidental interest here. Mr. Robert used to be a prominent in the summer social life of Newport as Mrs. James P. Kernochan. A brother of the bridegroom married a Miss Katherine Cheape, of England, a daughter of Col. Cheape, and the wedding was one season at Newport. This was before the death of his father.

Martin Maloney had Cardinal Gibbons as his week's end guest over last Sunday at his great establishment at Spring Lake, N. J., called Ballynary. On the previous day, Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Maloney and their daughter, Mrs. Carberry Ritchie, gave an afternoon reception for the Cardinal. The Cardinal preached in the beautiful memorial chapel erected by Mr. Maloney to his daughter Catherine. About twice as many persons tried to attend the services as the edifice would hold.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drezel are visiting relatives at their country place in Pennsylvania. Mr. Drezel's sister-in-law, Mrs. John R. Drezel, has done some entertaining during the past week for her guest, Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, wife of the American Minister to Belgium. Mrs. Townsend, who recently arrived from Brussels, was in New York with her husband for a time last winter and was seen at the Metropolitan Opera House with Mrs. Astor. She is regarded as a particularly interesting woman and visits Queen Alexandra in friendly fashion at Sandringham.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor are at Friedham, Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer's cottage at Newport, for the time being. Mrs. Astor was with her father, Edward S. Willing, at his cottage immediately after her arrival. Mr. Willing has with him his summer son, J. Barton Willing, and his widowed daughter, Mrs. Lawrence.

Allice Astor, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Astor's little girl, has also been at the cottage since her father went to England. The arrival of the Astors gave a flip to the gaieties which had been decidedly conspicuous by their absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt will give a big dinner next Wednesday evening, Aug. 10, at Sandy Mr. Vanderbilt place near Newport. Mrs. Vanderbilt was one of the young matrons who took an active part in the charity fete yesterday afternoon. She was chief dairymaid and sold produce of her husband's farm. Mrs. Vanderbilt's niece, Miss Kemp, daughter of her sister, Mrs. Hollis H. Hunnewell, is now within visiting range at Narragansett Pier, where Mr. Kemp's sisters, Mrs. Stephen H. Great preparations are being made for an entertainment which has been planned by Mrs. James Augustus Hewlett in aid of the Church Charity Foundation, under the care of the Bishop of Long Island. It is to be held on Mrs. Hewlett's estate, Rock of Lawrence, L. I., on the evening of Sept. 9.

It will be celebrated at the home of the bride's mother, Miss Edith Whelan of Baltimore, will attend as maid of honor and there will be several bridesmaids and ushers.
